Real Estate Values

The property or ad valorem tax is designed to provide a method to secure revenues so that local governments can operate schools and pay for vital resources like law enforcement, fire protection, public health and more.

The amount of property taxes you pay is based upon the value of your property and the tax rate determined by your local government.

Services

North Carolina law requires each county to reappraise real property (land, buildings and other improvements) at least every eight years, and personal property, cars and equipment every year.

These reappraisals are completed to maintain fairness and equity between property owners. Forsyth County schedules revaluations every fourth year to maintain equity. To do this, we use information from the market, like sales of real estate, rents and recent construction costs, to appraise property uniformly at its "true value in money."

Our goal is to value every property accurately and uniformly as of January 1 of the reappraisal year. That value is estimated based upon sales and market information that was available on or prior to January 1 of the reappraisal year.

These values do not change unless there is a change to the property like a demolition or an improvement or an error identified in the information stored for the property.

We want you to know!

The more accurate our information, the more accurate the values will be. Therefore, we make the information used to value property as accessible as possible.

Valuation information is available on the Detailed Property Information website at <http://tellus.co.forsyth.nc.us/lrcpwa/>. Property Information can be printed from this website, or you can contact our office to speak with a staff member.

We encourage you to review this information regularly. You can view sketches of the property, see information about bathroom counts, basement area, etc.

If there is an error in your properties information, please let us know. We want the information to be accurate.

How to File an Appeal

You may file an appeal for the current tax year after January 1 of that year and before the advertised close of the Board of Equalization and Review (BER). Please see the panel on Important Dates for more information regarding Real Estate, Non-Real Estate, Vehicle Gap Property Tax and Registered Motor Vehicle (RMV) appeals.

The appeal must be in writing and should be completed on the BER Appeal form that is available online on the County website at <http://www.forsyth.cc/Tax/forms.aspx>, or call to have a form mailed to you.

Mail the completed form along with any documentation per the instructions on the form.

Preparing an Appeal

North Carolina law presumes that the value determined by the Assessor's Office is correct. The appellant must prove that the assessed value substantially exceeds the market value of the property and that the Tax Assessor used either an illegal or an arbitrary method of assessing the property.

The Right Stuff

What does this mean? For Real Estate, the appellant needs to provide factual information such as pictures, information on recent constructions costs, sales of comparable properties that occurred prior to January 1 of the revaluation date or repair estimates for serious damage to the property.

At your request, an appraiser will visit your property to review the interior of your property and the condition.

If the appeal is for income producing property (rented or leased), income and expense statements should be include for the three years prior to the revaluation year.

For personal property and RMV appeals, include items like photographs, odometer statements, bills of sale and information on condition, make, model and year of manufacture.

Business personal property appeals should include appraisals, financial records and other relevant documents.

What to expect

You should expect contact from our office within a few weeks of filing the appeal. Later an appraiser will review the available information and determine whether changes to the assessed values are warranted. If the appraiser and the appellant are able to agree on the assessed value, the new value will be submitted to the BER for acceptance.

If an agreement cannot be reached, the appellant or their legal representatives must appear before the BER for a hearing.

Based upon the information submitted by the appellant and the county, the Board may sustain, reduce or raise the Assessor's Value. The appellant will be notified in writing of the Board's decision.
